MAY RELAX BANKHEAD LAW

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE most common notion among the people regarding national business is that America, having exhausted her frontier development, has nowhere to go in looking for new business activity. Well, I can tell you from personal experience that this is all foolishness.

Lottery Is Adopted by New York City for Relief Funds

Mayor LaGuardia Expected to Sign Board of Aldermen's Bill

AIM TO BEAT LAW

"Association" to Distribute Prizes in Form of Officers' "Salaries"

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City Tuesday turned to gambling—to help care for 300,000 needy.

The lottery bill, carefully phrased so that its legality may not be questioned and two measures imposing new taxes on the city's residents were rushed through the city legislature—the Board of Aldermen and the Board of Estimate.

Mayor LaGuardia was reported to be ready to sign the three measures, pushed through to raise from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 to carry on relief work halted when the city's funds were exhausted last Friday.

Other Relief Plans
In addition to the lottery law these two steps were taken by the two boards to raise relief funds:

1. One-tenth of one per cent tax on gross earnings of businesses.
2. An income tax equal to 15 per cent of all federal taxes paid during 1934.

If the mayor signs the tax measures residents of the city will pay three income taxes in addition to any rent or other imposts. There income taxes will be federal, state and city.

Lottery Plan Explained
In an attempt to make its scheme legal the city would operate the "lottery" in this way—the formation of an "association" with members paying $2.50, a tentative price in "dues."

At various times the "association" would elect "officers." This would be done by drawing names from a jury wheel. The officers would be paid high salaries, the amounts not as yet determined, and in this manner the prizes would be distributed.

It was estimated the "association" operated separately from the city, but with its Board of Trustees selected by the mayor and approved by the Board of Aldermen, would yield from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year.

41 Per Cent to City
The lottery would turn over 44 per cent of its receipts to the city comptroller for relief purposes. The remainder would be expended for prizes and for expenses.

Although the mayor can approve the lottery bill immediately—he must wait five days before signing the tax measure—a determined fight against it by churchmen was anticipated.

The lottery plan originally suggested by Borough President James J. Lyons, a Democrat, was opposed Tuesday by the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reiser, of the Broadway Temple, who said the "cheapest people of the city" would not accept it. A court test was anticipated by the administration.

It was tentatively estimated that the tax of 15 per cent of the federal income taxes paid on incomes earned in the city during 1934 would yield from $16,000,000 to $20,000,000.

The estimates on the one-tenth of one per cent tax, applicable to gross receipts of corporations and professional men exceeding $15,000 a year, approximated $7,500,000 a year.

Hardware Dealers to Meet Thursday

J. P. Duffie to Preside Over District Group at Hotel Barlow

A group meeting of Southwest Arkansas retail hardware dealers will be held at Hotel Barlow Thursday, with J. P. Duffie of this city, in charge.

The meeting has been arranged for the benefit of salesmen, clerks, bookkeepers, other employees and owners of retail hardware stores. Approximately 25 representatives from surrounding towns are expected here, Mr. Duffie said.

Walter E. Brown, president of the Arkansas Retail Hardware association, and Irwin Douglas of the National Retail Hardware association, are expected here as guests, and will assist in a study of hardware salesmanship and merchandising methods.

The meeting here is one of several group meetings being held over the entire state this month.

Riots Rake Maine City; Martial Law for Strike Area

Textile Mills Stormed by Strikers—Clubs and Stones Fly

REPORT TO F. D. R.

Mediation Board Document Eagerly Awaited by All Sides

By the Associated Press
Violence flared anew in the textile strike Wednesday as guardsmen were ordered to Waterville, Me., after the wildest riot of the strike in Maine to date.

Indications were that the city would be placed under martial law following rioting in which mill property was stormed and police and strikers fought with clubs, stones and tear-gas.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt, awaited a report from the strike mediation board. The report was eagerly awaited by all sides in the hope that it might contain a clue to the settlement of the strike.

Strike Ranks Increase

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 20,000 increase in the army of the strike, despite an unremitting drive to reopen Southern textile mills was revealed by an independent survey Tuesday as labor leaders arranged to extend the great walkout to all branches of the industry within the week.

The national strike committee of the United Textile Workers was voted authority by that organization's executive council to call out at its discretion some 100,000 workers in a hit-and-run tactic to strike divisions. Leaders declared they would do so Monday at the latest.

Figures gathered by the Associated indicated 421,000 out of the mills as compared with a little more than 400,000 at the close of last week.

Manufacturers contended the figures were far too high. Labor leaders say they are too low.

Sloan Claims Gain

George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, said that "at least 25,000 cotton textile employees in the South" had returned to work in the last two days under National Guard protection. Developments had proved, he said, that a large proportion of those who left the mills had done so because of intimidation by pickets and flying squadrons.

"We have contended from the beginning," said Sloan, "that our workers wanted to work and quit only because they were intimidated. The reaction during Monday and Tuesday now that they have protection, bears out that contention."

Francis J. Gorman, national strike leader, placed the total number at 500,000 and argued that, while some mills had reopened, only a small number of the employees had actually gone back to work.

Three Arrested in Car Theft Effort

Local Youths Seized in Attempt on E. F. McFadden's Auto

Three Hope youths were arrested Monday night in what officers described as an attempt to steal an automobile which was parked near the entrance of the Suenger theater.

The trio were arrested and lodged in jail. They are: Buddy Simpson, Rex Jones and Joe Ed Smith.

Simpson was seized as he attempted to drive away in an automobile owned by E. F. McFadden, Hope attorney. Smith and Jones, standing near the car, were arrested by Officers Reeves and Burke.

Officers said all three were intoxicated and that drunkenness charges are to be filed against them.

Smith and Jones were at liberty Wednesday under bond. Simpson remained in jail after being turned over to county authorities to face other charges.

Whether auto theft charges would be filed against the three was uncertain.

Rotary President Visits This City

R. L. Hill Pauses Here Tuesday Night on Way Home From Mexico

R. L. Hill, of Columbia, Mo., president of Rotary International, and a group of Rotary executives paused in Hope Tuesday night while returning home via Missouri Pacific from a visit to Mexico City, where they completed arrangements with Mexican government officials for the international conference there next spring.

The Rotary president was entertained earlier Tuesday night with a dutch supper by the Texarkana Rotary club in the union station at Texarkana, in which Rotarians from surrounding cities had been invited. Attending from this city were E. F. McFadden, chairman of the Extension Committee of Rotary International; L. Carter Johnson, and C. B. Presley.

Continuing by train to Hope, accompanied by Mr. McFadden, Mr. Hill was greeted here by a substantial portion of the local Rotary club's membership.

In the president's party were: Ed R. Johnson of Knoxville, Va., first vice-president of Rotary International last year; John Nelson of Montreal, Canada, immediate past president; Alfred H. McKewen of Detroit; Herbert Schofield of Loughborough, England; and Charles L. Wheeler of San Francisco.

R. L. Hill, director of alumni activities of the University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo., since 1923, had developed through his vocation, a circle of friendships which not only reaches into every corner of the United States but includes as well many cities of the world. As the organizer of clubs of graduates of the University of Missouri, he has more or less personal contact with some 40,000 men and women and it is commonly said that he knows more people in Missouri than any other man in the state.

Since childhood he has lived in Columbia. After finishing high school there he attended Culver Military Academy at Culver, Ind., and was a member of the Culver boat crew that won the championship of the Great Lakes region in 1912. He graduated from the University of Missouri with the B. S. degree and in 1913 he received his M. S. degree. While in the university he exhibited the ability to organize and hold the interest of groups of people which was so manifest in his later life.

After graduation he spent some years on a farm and in 1923 came back to the university as alumni recorder, to organize a campaign among the graduates of the university for a World War memorial and stadium. This established his ability and he has continued since as director of alumni activities and editor of the monthly publication, "The Missouri Alumnus."

He was president of the Columbia Chamber of Commerce in 1920-22 and has served in office in most of the civic organizations of Columbia.

Two months after the Rotary club of Columbia was organized, in 1922, he was elected to membership. He has served as secretary and president of the club, governor of the 14th Rotary district (western Missouri) and was elected a director of Rotary International in 1928. In 1929-30 he was chairman of the service club committee of R. L. in 1930-31 he was chairman of the aims and objects committee of R. L.; in 1931-32 he was chairman of the convention committee for the 1932-33 convention; he was chairman of the general transportation arrangements committee for the 1933 convention; and in 1933-34 a member of the convention committee for the 1934 (Detroit) convention. At Detroit he was unanimously elected president of Rotary International.

Council Hires New Policeman to Push Fine Collections

Harold Porterfield Appointed to Local Staff Wednesday

TO FORCE PAYMENT

Completion of Basket Factory's Board Walk Told to Council

The city council took steps Tuesday night to collect a greater portion of fines assessed against law violators in Municipal Judge W. K. Lemley's court.

Action of the council was to pass a motion hiring an additional policeman.

The appointment of Harold Porterfield was made Wednesday by Chief of Police Clarence E. Baker.

He said that one of the main duties of the appointee would be "to collect fines assessed in municipal court, or see that the fines are completely worked out."

Other duties will be collection of city revenues besides routine and general police work.

List From Clerk
The council instructed T. R. Billingsley, city recorder, to obtain a list of uncollected fines from the municipal court clerk and submit these figures to the council at its next meeting.

The total amount of fines uncollected since January 1 is expected to run into hundreds of dollars, it was said. A move toward collection of these fines will be launched.

Chief Baker, elated over the council's action, said Wednesday that "law violators would either have to shell down with cash or work out their complete fines."

Other business with the council Tuesday night was to pass a motion ordering all meat markets within the city to close on Sunday.

Health Board Called
The Board of Health was instructed to meet with the council the second meeting of each month.

Chairman of the sidewalk committee reported that a board walk leading to the Hope Basket factory had been completed at a cost of approximately $200 to the city.

W. A. H. Schneider was appointed commissioner of curb and gutter district number 5 and street improvement district number 9.

The Board of Public Affairs recommended the purchase of 500 feet of fire hose for greater fire protection.

A complaint filed by a Mr. Royce who resides near the city dumping ground was heard but action was deferred until the next meeting of the council. Mr. Royce asked damages for a pasture fire, which he said was caused when burning refuse from the dumping ground blew into the pasture, destroying it.

Bilbo Wins Senate Seat in Mississippi

Veteran Politician Defeats Senator H. D. Stephens

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Theodore G. Bilbo, a veteran of many political battles, apparently will be the United States senator from Mississippi.

Democratic run-off from Tuesday's Democratic run-off primary, the Pearl River, 2,790 votes to 399. On the other hand, Bilbo gave Stephens a stiff race in the latter's home county, Union, polling 1,351 votes to 1,333 for the native son.

Nearly complete unofficial returns from two of the three congressional districts where contests were held showed Representative Jeff Busby, of the Fourth district, and Representative Russell Elzey of the Seventh district trailing their opponents.

In the Fourth district, Busby trailed District Attorney A. L. Ford of Ackerman, 10,431 Ford 11,481.

The vote from 240 out of 296 precincts in the Seventh district gave Elzey 17,530 and state Senator Dan McGeech of Meadville, 19,173.

District Attorney Aubert C. Dunn was leading Thomas L. Bailey, speaker of the state House in the hand-made nails; C. Williams turns out 5 pounds of giant barge nails in eight hours.

Poisoned Meat Thrown in Local Yard, But Hounds are Saved

Neighbor Sees Something Thrown Into Bridewell Yard—Search Discloses 3 Strips of Poisoned Meat

Dog-poissoners are at work again in Hope, according to aroused residents or Shover street.

R. O. Bridewell advertised Wednesday a $5 reward for information regarding the person who is alleged to have tossed poisoned meat into his yard at 317 Shover Tuesday night.

A neighbor saw a man toss something into the yard and, knowing that Mr. Bridewell kept three dogs, feared the objects were poisoned food. He notified Mr. Bridewell immediately.

A search revealed three strips of meat that had been slit open and saturated with poison, according to Mr. Bridewell.

Fortunately the dogs didn't have time to reach the meat, and so "General," "Captain" and "Major" are still alive today and kicking.

Escaped Lion Shot Down in Richmond

Beast Kills Horse, Threatens Terrorized Crows, Finally Cornered

RICHLAND, Va. (AP)—A circus guard Wednesday shot to death a raging lion after the beast had broken open his cage during a parade, pulled down a wagon horse and scattered crowds in terror.

The beast sought refuge in a sheet metal works building, scattering frightened employees.

The guard and policemen trapped the animal and killed it.

Officers Blamed for Sea Disaster

They Failed to Close Fire Doors, Investigators Discover

BULLETIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Runners that Captain Robert R. Willmott, who died several hours before his ship, the Morro Castle, was swept by fire, had met with foul play, were spiced Wednesday by an officer of the line. Fourth Officer Howland Hansen told the Department of Commerce investigating board that he had been summoned to the dead captain's room and had tried to revive him. Hansen said he saw no signs of violence.

ASBURY PARK, N. J.—Responsibility for the enormity of the disaster which destroyed the Morro Castle with a loss of 132 lives was placed squarely upon the shoulders of her officers and crew Tuesday by D. N. Hoover, chairman of the federal Board of Inquiry, after an inspection of the charred hull of the ship.

It was their failure to swing the great iron corridor doors into place immediately after the fire was discovered in the writing room which allowed it to sweep unchecked through the ship, he found.

"I have been convinced from the first that if these doors had been closed the fire could have been controlled and the tragedy averted," Hoover said. "After inspecting the ship I am of the same opinion. It would have made no difference whether there was one fire or two burning simultaneously, that was the worst it could have been checked and her passengers could have been saved. We found one door that was almost closed; the others had not been put in use at all."

In the mad confusion of fire fighting in which the crew pitted its puny, unaided efforts against the consuming furnace which was sweeping off many of the ship's fire hydrants were not used, Hoover said his inspection revealed.

Admitting that the origin of the fire may remain an unsolved mystery, he said that the interior of the ship is completely burned away, superstructure and holds alike.

"There is no evidence that there was any explosion, however, other than those which might have been expected as the fire burned its way into the ship," he said.

Southern Appeal to Be Decided at Session Saturday

Decision Rests on Conference Between Wallace and the South

DROUTH LOSS CITED

Smallest Crop on Record Removes Necessity, Says Senator Bankhead

WASHINGTON (AP)—Outspoken opposition of some Cotton Belt congressional leaders to the operation this year of the rigid Bankhead cotton control act Wednesday brought forth the possibility that Secretary Wallace might ask President Roosevelt to defer or modify the operation of the act this season.

Contending that the reason for the act, which was designed to prevent overproduction of cotton, has been removed by drouth conditions and voluntary acreage reductions, making the 1934 cotton crop one of the smallest on record, a group of Southerners has appealed to Washington to suspend the law for this year.

Just what action Wallace will take probably depends largely on the outcome of a conference arranged Saturday between Wallace and a group of congressional leaders, including Senator Bankhead of Alabama, co-author of the bill.

Bankhead Takes Action

JASPER, Ala. (AP)—United States Senator John H. Bankhead, one of the authors of the cotton control act, Tuesday advocated increasing individual allotments under the act to cover "all cotton harvested this year."

The Alabama senator said he would confer with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace Saturday and would urge this action.

"Regular conditions existing and the delay in getting tax exemption certificates issued to producers," were among reasons advanced for the proposed allotment increase. Mr. Bankhead said that a crop less than the 10,000,000 bales allowed as "tax free" under the act would be harvested.

"I favor, however, presenting the rights in the exemption certificates of all producers who were unable this year to produce the amount of cotton allotted to them as tax exempt," he said. "If the act is in operation next year these producers will be entitled to that much cotton in addition to the regular allotments made them under whatever allotment basis may be adopted for next year."

"Eliminating the tax on cotton in excess of allotments, however, will not involve the continuance of the Bankhead cotton control act," the senator stressed.

He said discussion of eliminating the tax this year had caused some confusion. Enlargement of the allotments to permit sale by farmers who have cotton in excess of their allotment will not put any more cotton on the market than would be sold under the present conditions, the senator said, pointing out that exemption certificates can be bought for four cents a pound from farmers who fail to raise their allotted number of bales.

Under the latter plan, Mr. Bankhead said, growers would net about the average price per pound received for last year's crop.

He said farmers will be given an opportunity to vote on whether they want to continue cotton control under a different basis than that applied this year.

Now Cigaret Is, Now It Isn't. Harum!

Regardless of the fact that many millions of people smoke tobacco regularly and that they have been doing so for many years, the scientific facts relative to the effects of tobacco on the human body are only beginning to be established.

A recent investigation made at Harvard University indicates that the most important substance in tobacco is nicotine. A cigarette contains about one grain of tobacco—that is, about 1-30th of an ounce, and 1-100th of this is nicotine.

Investigations show also that about 1-10th of the nicotine present is absorbed by the smoker into his body. Yet, it has been established, this small amount of nicotine may bring about significant changes in body reactions.

Some investigators found that the blood sugar increases 20 to 40 per cent during the 15 minutes that follow the smoking of one cigarette and returns to normal within the next 30 minutes.

Another investigator found that the blood sugar rose in a fairly uniform manner for a period of two hours after smoking two cigarettes.

Unfortunately for the significance of these observations still another investigator found a decrease in blood sugar after smoking, and two others found that smoking did not have any effect on the blood sugar. For this reason the investigators in Harvard decided to recheck the matter.

They tried the effects of smoking of cigarettes on 10 smokers, using four different types of cigarettes and taking several specimens of the blood at different intervals after smoking was completed. In nine of the 10 cases the blood sugar content was not affected more than 5 per cent one way or the other.

This observation is of the greatest significance, because the establishment of a definite rise in blood sugar following smoking would seriously modify the habits of all persons with diabetes or of diabetic tendency.

In connection with these investigations it has been pointed out that the smoking of cigarettes will alleviate hunger.

One group of physiologists pointed out that this alleviation of hunger was due to the increase of the amount of sugar in the blood. Another group insisted, however, that the alleviation of hunger was associated with a lessening of the contractions of the stomach which come on when a person is hungry.

Some special studies have brought out new evidence to the support of those who insist that smoking relieves hunger because it stops the contractions of the stomach.

A final observation of considerable significance is the relationship of cigarette smoking to oxygen consumption. In some people the smoking of cigarettes is followed by an increase of oxygen consumption of from 10 to 15 per cent.

The Most Critical Moment in History—That's How This Writer Sees the Present Era

By BRUCE CATTON

The crisis that confronts mankind today, says Gerald Heard in "These Hurrying Years," is not only greater in size than any previous crisis; it is a crisis of an entirely different kind than any the race has previously faced, and the present moment is possibly the most crucial in all human history.

Troubles of the depression, of war, of class antagonism—all of these, says Mr. Heard, are only symptoms of the underlying difficulty.

This basic difficulty, he continues, is this: that all of our fundamental ideas about man and the universe have changed more rapidly and profoundly in the last generation than in all recorded time before that.

We learned, he says, that we are creatures of our environment; in the next moment we began to discover, not only that we can remake our environment at will, but that we can actually condition our response to it. In other words, we found that we could shape our own destinies, and the trouble is that we have just as good a chance of shaping them in the wrong direction as in the right.

It is impossible, in the space of a brief review, to do more than hint at the outline of Mr. Heard's thesis. His book is a survey of world events in the 20th century, through which he only serve to point up the fact. Remember that the lines in your face show what you are. They're ugly if the person beneath is pretty, vindictive, intolerant and jealous of the happiness of others. They're beautiful on a woman who has kept on smiling when things went wrong and done unto others as she'd be done by. Lines in themselves shouldn't worry anyone. It's the kind they are that counts.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOOTS RAEBURN, is and pretty, clothes with RUSS LUND, handsome swimming instructor. Russ goes to Miami, promising to send for her later, and Boots gets a job in a New York department store.

Russ does not write. Months pass and then word comes that he has been killed in a motorboat accident.

Too proud to ask her parents for help, Boots struggles on alone. She meets DENIS PENWAY, young author, who introduces her to EDWARD VAN SEIVER, a beautiful KAY CHILLINGWORTH. Denis helps Boots get a job in a book shop. Van Seiver, whom she has been avoiding, turns up again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXVI

BOOTS faced Edward soberly across the small table. In a corner, screened behind flowering shrubs in green tubs, a string orchestra softly played.

"I don't honestly know," she confessed. "I don't know what to say."

Russ had been dead for eight months now. Whenever she thought of him it was with a little tug of pain at her heartstrings. She knew now that what she had felt for Russ was merely attraction. If he had lived their life together would have been a mockery. Just the same, she was not ready to be Edward's wife. It wasn't right—it wasn't decent—that Russ, with his big smile and his hearty voice and his cheerful swagger, should be so soon forgotten.

"We could slip away and be married very quietly, if you see," Edward was saying ingratiatingly. "No publicity."

She made a little movement of dissent. "You're rushing me so," she complained. "I only said I would consider it."

"You like me, don't you?" Edward stared at her rather discontentedly.

"Of course I do. But that's not enough."

"Nonsense," said Edward triumphantly and with the air of settling the discussion.

The thought flashed into Boots' mind that marriage with Edward would square off old scores with Sylvia and Patty and all the girls who had hurt her during that last summer in Larchneck. Oh, but did all that matter? When she married it must be for love and love alone, not because her ring would make Sylvia Rivers open her eyes more widely.

Ah, but what Edward didn't understand was that liking wasn't enough to justify marriage. She had rushed pell mell into marriage before, unconsciously, like a child playing a new game. Her lesson had been brief and bitter.

Edward had everything to recommend him, she reminded herself. Looks, money, family, position. He had an equable disposition. His big laugh rang out heartily on every occasion. What matter then if her pulses did not race at his approach? It was madness to expect that racing of the pulses. Denis who stirred this response in her belonged to someone else. . .

As though divining her thoughts, Edward said carelessly, "Saw Kay and Denis last night."

Her heart raced like a wild thing; stopped; raced again. Her voice was very cool, unfeeling. "Did you really?"

"Ummmm. At the Casino. Kay looked a knockout."

How did Denis look, cried her hungry heart? Was he thin and foe drawn, silent and aloof? Was he mocking and cruel? Did he speak of me?

Aloud she said, "She's very good looking."

Edward ate caviar with relish, nodding. He liked good food, good wines. He always had the best table at restaurant or night club. He had flungside seats at the fights, aisle seats for first nights of good plays. If she married Edward she wouldn't have to worry about bills. She would have supple furs to wrap around her, sleek chiffons and silks, fine faces. . .

"What's on your mind, lovely?" She smiled at him. "Will Denis and Kay be married soon, do you think?"

"Don't know. They said to last summer. Probably they'll just run down to City Hall some morning and do it without fuss. . ."

Let them do it and be over with it, Boots cried within herself, that icy hand squeezing her heart. Let them marry and send out cards and have a party and eat a cake and books and beds and the rest of it. Then I'll put him out of my mind forever. I won't be thinking of another woman's husband. . .

Kay as a young wife, dark, smiling, beautiful; Denis bending over her, proud, disdained of all others. No, no, she couldn't bear it! She would go back and forth to the Day Tree every day and some day she would meet Denis on the street. Oh, better to be dead and buried than to meet Denis that!

"We'd go abroad after we married," Edward was saying fatuously. "You've never been, little thing, have you? We'd Paris and London and Vienna and Budapest. . ."

She listened to him idly, as in a dream. She promised nothing but her eyes smiled vaguely and he accepted this as half a promise.

LATER, in the shop, Frances Gavvrey said to her, "He's really a very nice lad. I think you're a lucky girl. Someone else had said that—who? One of the girls at Lucy's. But Frances was different. She was more worldly, more assured and she, too, thought Edward splendid."

Insensibly Boots was affected by these various pronouncements. She was kinder to Edward, gentler with him, sweeter, so that he came to adopt a completely possessive air with her. By October when her year of mourning for Russ was almost up she had met his people. Boots tacitly approved by them. The web tightened around her.

One warm, rainy October morning she was alone in the shop when a slim, middle-aged woman in a bright blue raincoat walked in. She was silhouetted against the light and Boots came forward with the polite, mechanical smile reserved for customers. Her manner changed abruptly. She rushed into the other woman's arms.

To Register for Vetch Purchases

Carload of Hungarian Vetch Is Expected Here This Week

Hempstead county farmers who wish to produce vetch this fall for a soil-improving crop are urged to register this week at the county agent's office at Hope city hall.

A carload of Hungarian vetch is expected here this week, and will be distributed by Carroll S. Macrow, assistant to County Agent Stanley.

Mr. Morrow who came here recently from Nevada county where he was assistant to County Agent Hiler, said that prices were advancing and urged that farmers register at once in order to save money in purchasing the vetch.

Mr. Morrow recommended that farmers sow vetch for the following reasons:

Hardness: Hungarian vetch is a little less hardy than hairy vetch, stand, but between hairy and Oregon vetch. It can reasonably be expected to stand most winters in Arkansas, especially in the southern and central parts. It was included in his test at the Cotton Branch Station the last two years and winter has not killed it there.

Growth: Hungarian vetch makes a little quicker growth in the spring than hairy vetch, but the latter will usually excel later in the season.

Soil Adaptation: Hungarian vetch is adapted to the same soil conditions as hairy vetch with the additional adaptation of standing somewhat poorer drainage, according to tests made outside of Arkansas. However, this does not justify recommending that it be planted where drainage is poor.

Amount of seed: Hungarian vetch seed should be planted somewhat heavier than seed of hairy vetch, probably about a third heavier. Since seed of Hungarian now costs about half as much as that of hairy vetch it would be cheaper to plant 30 pounds of Hungarian vetch seed per acre than 20 pounds of hairy vetch.

When recommended: Hairy vetch is preferred over Hungarian vetch when the difference in price is small enough. Possibly we should say that Hungarian vetch is to be preferred except possibly in extreme North Arkansas if the price of hairy vetch is 50 per cent higher than the price of Hungarian.

Week's Menu Planned in Advance

Aid Savings

BY MARY E. DAGUE

NEA Service Staff Writer

Here are summer gone, children are all in school again, winter is coming on—and the usual three square meals a day to plan. The season may change the items on the menu—but never gives the housewife a let-up in her daily planning chore.

Well, since we must, let's think about Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grapes, cereal, cream, bread, cranberry pancakes, honey, milk and coffee.

LUNCHEON: Baked vegetable hash, lettuce and egg sandwiches, peach cottage pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER: Roiled flank of beef, ten-minute cabbage, banana and peanut salad, baking powder biscuit with fresh grape conserve, apple tapioca pudding, milk and coffee.

breakfast, dinner and supper. First of all don't make the mistake of letting your meals grow winterish before they need. Keep fresh vegetables and fruits in star roles as long as possible.

As long as you can let fresh fruits and vegetables hold the first place in the daily fare. Substitute canned vegetables for fresh, if necessary, but see that your children keep them in their diet well balanced.

Add Courses for Adults

Menus planned for growing children should be simple. Then for adults add one or two courses. A soup, canned or home-made, or a salad of vegetables or fresh fruits, will do wonders to dress up a plain meal. Or the addition of home-made relishes or preserves, gaudies or hot baking powder biscuits will furnish up an everyday treat.

There's an advantage to planning a week's menus in advance. The method saves money, time and labor, it checks a tendency toward extravagant marketing and does away with that frantic daily worrying about what to have.

And it, of course, makes using up leftovers a game. A meat pie, tamales, hash or croquettes are planned to take care of the leftovers from the roast. Bread pudding, bread crumbs, pancakes and a "mock duck" take care of the week's accumulation of stale bread or crumbs. A jellied salad in the middle of the week makes use of the odds and ends of fruits and vegetables.

Cool Weather Helps

Many of the commodities that were purchased in small quantities during the warm weather can now be bought in larger amounts without danger of spoilage and waste, and a saving is effected in this way. Watch the markets for bargains to take advantage of special prices made possible by quantity buying.

Study the brands of all the various foodstuffs on the market and find the one that meets your needs and tastes.

Make the most of every food you serve by attractively garnishing and serving. Simple foods prepared and garnished in an appetizing and elaborately cooked and put on the table.

I felt better after I took my first bottle, so kept on taking it as I felt such a need of strength, and it helped me so much."

Schoolboy Rowe Kidnaping Plotted

Detroit Woman Tells Police of Overhearing Plans Against Star

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—Detroit police Tuesday night were investigating the story of Mrs. Violet Talbot, 30, that she was kidnaped Tuesday afternoon by two men and held for several hours while they talked about "kidnaping Schoolboy Rowe," pitcher of the Detroit Tigers.

Mrs. Talbot said she was forced into an automobile by two men near the receiving hospital in Detroit, and released several hours later in Pontiac, Mich. She said she was blindfolded during her captivity.

Mrs. Talbot reported the affair to Pontiac police who reported to Detroit police. Officers in Pontiac dropped the case without making an investigation, but Lieut. O. H. Straight of Detroit said that the episode would be investigated. They had no reports that Rowe had been threatened.

Contest Hearing Date to Be Set

Trial Judge Will Be Patrick Henry, Monticello Jurist

CAMDEN — (AP)—Necessary legal preliminaries for hearing of the election contest filed by Wade Kitchens defeated candidate for the seventh district congressional race, were completed Tuesday.

A hearing date will be set shortly by Judge Patrick Henry of Monticello, who will hear the case at Hamburg.

Kitchens, who led on unofficial returns, but who trailed on official tallies, after the Ashley Democratic committee had "purged" several boxes in the county, charged that irregularities marked the runoff in Ashley, Calhoun, Clark, Ouachita and Bradley counties.

When Parks was certified as having been renominated, the official tally was announced as, Parks, 14,065; Kitchens, 13,774, a majority of 291 votes for Parks.

Judge Henry is expected to issue an order Wednesday permitting poll books, tally sheets and certificates of votes to be removed from all Ashley county ballot boxes for examination by attorneys representing both Parks and Kitchens. The ballots themselves will not be disturbed.

Copies of the proposed order were submitted Tuesday by both sides in the suit but Judge Henry indicated neither was satisfactory. However, he added that he expected to make a "harmonizing order" Wednesday.

Frank S. Jones, Federal Laboratories representative in Cuba, showed that the concern has had dealings in the island republic for years.

The situation was such in November, 1933, that Young was frankly puzzled. He had virtually committed himself to sell to both the Grau government and the Mendibita group, then out. He planned a trip to Havana to find out what to do.

"I talked to the State Department and asked advice," he testified. "They couldn't advise. They said, as I recall, that the logical thing to do was to go to Havana."

The result of that trip, Young said, was to convince him that the Grau government—never recognized by the United States—would not endure, and he instructed that business was to be done with "the outs."

"I called at the State Department on my return," he testified, "and told them about my trip. They could not advise me. They said there was no ruling, no law or treaty to control the situation."

Vandenberg commented that you "were, however, prepared to do business with both the outs and the ins."

One Hurt, Another Jailed, in Fight

Ed Beatty Severely Beaten at Emmet—Royce Fee Arrested

Ed Beatty, 65-year-old Emmet farmer, was brought to Josephine hospital at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon suffering from severe head wounds as the result of an alleged drunken fight at Emmet with his nephew, Royce Fee.

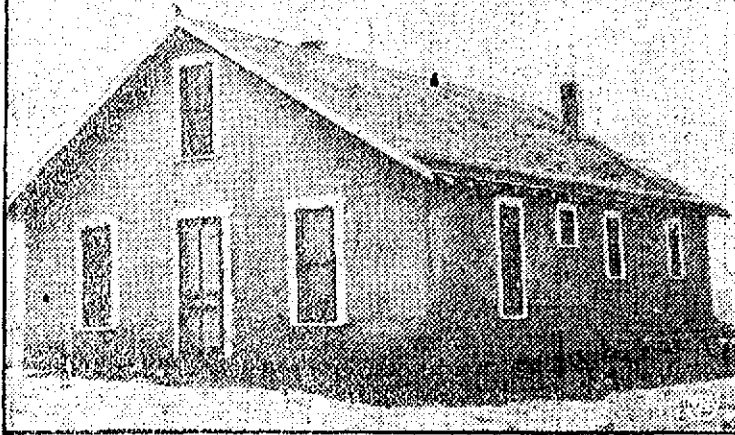

Deputy Sheriff Earl May arrested Fee and lodged him in jail at Prescott.

May told The Star that the fight occurred at Temple Cotton Oil company at Emmet. He said both men had been drinking and that an argument over FERA activities led into a fight.

He said that Fee struck Beatty, knocking him to the ground and then stomped him.

Physicians at the hospital said Beatty was suffering from a lacerated right ear and a possible fracture of the skull. He also has several minor head wounds.

"Schoolboy" Rowe Beats Yanks 2-0

Tigers, 7 1/2 Games Ahead, Have Pennant Practically Clinched

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—For the second time in as many days the Tigers shut out their only remaining challengers for the American League pennant, the New York Yankees, winning 2 to 0 Tuesday to advance another step toward clinching the flag.

Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe took up the task where Alvin Crowder left off yesterday and set down the Yankees with five hits. The triumph put the Tigers 7 1/2 games in the lead. Four more victories, regardless of how many more the Yanks win, will clinch the flag for Detroit.

It was the fifth time this season the Schoolboy has beaten the Yanks and the second successive blanking he has inflicted.
Hank Greenberg, the New York boy who plays first base for Detroit, accounted for the first Tiger run off Red Ruffing in the fourth inning. He broke the scoreless tie by hammering his 25th home run of the season over the left field fence. Rowe drove in the other run in the fifth. After Billy Rogell had singled and Pete Fox had sent him to second with a sacrifice, the pitcher hit a single to center to score the runner.
Ruffing pitched an excellent game for the Yanks but couldn't match the Schoolboy. The Yankee hurler-allowed only seven hits and struck out five. Rowe fanned seven and didn't let a runner reach third until the ninth.
